36 GENERAL

- 36.1 If any court or competent authority finds that any provision of the Contract (or part of any provision) is invalid, illegal or unenforceable, that provision or part-provision shall, to the extent required, be deemed to be deleted, and the validity and enforceability of the other provisions of the Contract shall not be affected.
- 36.2 If any invalid, unenforceable or illegal provision of the Contract would be valid, enforceable and legal if some part of it were deleted, the provision shall apply with the minimum modification necessary to make it legal, valid and enforceable.
- 36.3 A waiver of any right or remedy under the Contract is only effective if given in writing and shall not be deemed a waiver of any subsequent breach or default. No failure or delay by a party to exercise any right or remedy provided under the Contract or by law shall constitute a waiver of that or any other right or remedy, nor shall it preclude or restrict the further exercise of that or any other right or remedy. No single or partial exercise of such right or remedy shall preclude or restrict the further exercise of that or any other right or remedy.
- 36.4 The Contract shall not constitute or imply any partnership, joint venture, agency, fiduciary relationship or other relationship between the Parties other than the contractual relationship expressly provided for in the Contract. Neither Party shall have, nor represent that it has, any authority to make any commitments on the other Party's behalf.

2 Scope of this Document

This document defines the technical requirements and the statement of work for procurement of baseplates for Optical Benches for the LISA mission.

3 Project Outline Description

3.1 The LISA Mission

The LISA concept for directly detecting the oscillating strain in spacetime caused by gravitational waves shares the scheme used in all laser interferometer-based gravitational wave detectors: The passage of the wave is detected by measuring the time-varying changes of optical pathlength between test masses isolated from all forces other than gravitational waves.

The project draws on experience gleaned from the LISA Pathfinder (LPF) mission, a pioneering mission to test the LISA concept and demonstrate key concepts and technologies. A key technology to the LISA mission is performing interferometry with hydroxide catalysis bonded optics and this was demonstrated on LPF.

Gravitational wave detectors based on laser interferometers measure the change in length (δL) directly. The strain ($\delta L/L$) produced by the sources accessible with LISA may be as small as 10^{-24} . This argues simultaneously for a measurement length L as large as possible and long integration times, the primary impetus for a space-borne detector millions of kilometres long. Interferometry is the only measurement system known that can operate over these distances and with the required sensitivity.

“Free-falling” or inertial masses are not only an important conceptual detail in the detection of gravitational waves but are an essential for achieving the required sensitivity for LISA. Free-falling masses are, by definition, undisturbed by forces other than gravitation. Keeping the test masses in free-fall conditions allows avoiding disturbances to the test masses causing time-varying movements that in turn could be confused with the apparent displacements caused by gravitational radiation: The residual disturbances of the masses must be sufficiently small such that the resulting motions are less than the apparent length changes associated with gravitational waves to be detected. To achieve free-fall conditions, the detector must be located in a very quiet environment. Space can provide a very stable, benign environment if careful design choices for science instrumentation, spacecraft and orbits are made.

3.2 Optical Bench

The Optical Bench (OB) will host the optical, mechanical and electronic components that enable the LISA interferometers to function. Optical components will be mounted on both sides – as shown below – using a hydroxide catalysis bonding process proven on the LISA Pathfinder experiment. To ensure stability, the OB Baseplate will be manufactured from Zerodur, acid etched to maximise strength and polished to allow the mounting process and to enable tight alignment tolerances to be met.

4 Scope of Work

4.1 Context

The LISA OB will be produced at several model stages over several years. The initial stage and tender will be for the procurement of Engineering Models of the OB Baseplate and associated hardware/work to aid development of the overall project. Later stages/models (not part of this tender) may not be of the same design.

Table 1: Deliverables with Target Schedule.

Task	Deliverable	Quantity	Anticipated Date of Stage Gate	Target Delivery Date
1	Process Definition report	-		To be defined by Supplier, consistent with the delivery dates of the tasks in Stage 1
2	Light-weighting Sample	1	Contract KO (July 2023)	Contract KO + 5 Months
3	Engineering Model (EM) OB Baseplate	2		1 st EM Contract KO + 13 Months 2 nd EM Contract KO + 16 Months

4.2 Task Descriptions

4.2.1 Task 1: Process Definition and Preparation for Manufacture

Prior to kick-off of any manufacturing activities, the supplier shall prepare a report detailing the processes, procedures, and verification approach to be followed. These shall be documented in the Process Definition Report, and subject to a review by the UKATC – the Process Review.

The Process Definition Report shall cover, as a minimum:

- Definition of the intended manufacturing and finishing processes
- Definition of intended verification processes, including inspections and measurements (also any methods employed to identify/quantify internal geometry quality and/or sub-surface damage)
- Definition of intended cleaning and packaging method(s)
- Design and definition of storage and transport processes and equipment
- Proposals for appropriate Key Inspection Point(s) (KIP(s)) during the manufacture of each baseplate.

Design and procurement of any applicable custom tooling should also take place during Task 1, with the aim of completing Task 1 in parallel with tooling procurement / Non Recurring Engineering (NRE) work in order to minimise the delay of the manufacturing Tasks (2 and 3). For scheduling purposes, the supplier should allocate 2 weeks for the Process Review.

Task Output:

- Process Definition Report (deliverable)
- Any required custom tooling / NRE

4.2.2 Task 2: Light-weighting Sample

4.2.2.1 Work

A light-weighting sample will provide some knowledge and inform development work for the ongoing LISA project/mission. The sample will have no influence on the Engineering Model OB Baseplate design and manufacturing commencement (4.2.3 – Task 3), which could continue as planned. It is understood the manufacturer may plan similar ‘trial’ pieces/processes to optimise the manufacture of the Baseplate and could still do this before/after the light-weighting sample is produced.

4.2.3.3 Requirements

The technical requirements which shall apply to the OB baseplates are detailed in Section 5. The PA and QA requirements detailed in Section 6, and the documentation requirements detailed in Section 7 shall apply to each baseplate produced.

5 Technical Requirements

5.1 Specification of the Hardware Deliverables

All technical requirements for each type of hardware deliverable are detailed within the drawing for that item.

5.2 Additional Information for Baseplate

5.2.1 Clarification of Polishing Note 1 within OB Baseplate Drawing

For information, a key requirement is the surface gradient specification (polishing note 1 located on sheet 3 of drawing LISA-UKOB-INST-DW-0077), specified as:

THE SURFACE GRADIENT IN EACH ORTHOGONAL DIRECTION (i.e. dX/dZ , dY/dZ) SHALL BE $\leq \pm 3$ MICRORADIANS AT SPATIAL FREQUENCIES ≥ 10 mm OVER THE FULL EFFECTIVE AREAS.

This means that the maximum deviation from the best-fit plane of each baseplate surface, for surface distances over 10mm, shall be $\leq \pm 3 \mu\text{rad}$. This is illustrated in the figure below.

6 Product and Quality Assurance Requirements

6.1 Product Assurance Processes Requirements

The Supplier shall operate Product Assurance processes in accordance with the relevant requirements of ECSS-Q branch of standards (specifically [AD-01], [AD-02] and [AD-03]).

The relevant requirements are those described in this Section.

6.2 Material Traceability

Full traceability of the material used in the production of hardware deliverables shall be kept and presented to the UKATC.

6.3 Serial Numbers and Identification Requirements

Each hardware deliverable shall have a unique identifier.

This identifier shall be clearly and indelibly marked on the hardware and corresponding paperwork.

The method of marking and location shall be proposed by the supplier, but UKATC approval is required.

6.4 Cleaning, Packaging and Transportation Requirements

The baseplates will be unpacked in an ISO14644 Class 5 clean room at UKATC, and so the baseplates must be cleaned and packed for shipping in packaging compatible with this clean room environment. In particular, the packaging shall include an inner wrapping carried out in a clean room by the supplier so that the inner part can be directly unpacked in the clean room at UKATC.

- The cleaning and packaging method shall be proposed by the supplier and agreed with UKATC during task 1.
- Hardware deliverables shall be protected from damage during storage and shipment.
- Delivered Baseplates shall be protected from contamination during storage and shipment.
- Packaging materials used directly in contact with the Baseplates shall be low-linting to minimize shedding of particulates on to the manufactured parts.
- Baseplates shall not be handled at the 3x Ø40.8mm insert holes after the acid-etching process.
- Baseplates shall be free from any silicone residue, and part contact with silicone shall be avoided at all times during manufacture.
- Baseplate packaging shall not contain any silicone-based materials whatsoever.

6.5 Verification

The Supplier is responsible for carrying out all measurements and inspections required by this Specification, unless otherwise specified.

The UKATC reserves the right to witness and approve any inspections. For this purpose the Supplier shall inform the UKATC of the occurrence of agreed Key Inspection Points (KIPs), as defined in 4.2.1 Task 1: Process Definition and Preparation for Manufacture.

All equipment used during inspections and measurement shall be documented, and details (such as make, model, calibration dates etc.) provided with the EIDP.

6.6 Nonconformances

All inspection and test failures shall result in the issuing of a non-conformance report (NCR) that details (if necessary, supported by photographs) the nature of the non-conformance and the most probable cause.

The NCR process shall be in accordance with [AD-03].

If possible, a solution shall be proposed that solves the problem, detailing the schedule impact, if any.

The manufacturer shall inform the UKATC by submitting the NCR within 2 working days after the occurrence.

The UKATC shall be invited to participate in the non-conformance review board (NRB).

Non-standard repair or NRB dispositions shall be approved by the UKATC prior to implementation.

6.7 Contract Management

The Supplier shall nominate a prime contact who will be responsible for communicating the progress of the work.

Progress reports shall be provided to UKATC on a monthly basis that will describe:

- Work completed since the previous report
